Heritage Open Days in Preston

Your chance to explore some of Preston's intriguing buildings...

Saturday 14 and Sunday 15 September 2013

Step through historic doors into some of Preston's fascinating buildings...

Twelve historic buildings and sites with stories to tell are opening on Saturday 14 and/or Sunday 15 September for Heritage Open Days. There are special tours, displays and information – don't miss this chance to discover more of Preston's architectural heritage.

Use the map to find your way around!

Explore Preston's historic streets

Preston is full of other fascinating buildings – if you know where to look. The route highlighted in orange on the map will take you to:

Market Square Yates' jewellers, the oldest building in the city centre.

Friargate The Black Horse Hotel is Grade 2 listed and has an original interior.

Lune Street The 1853 riots that inspired Charles Dickens' Hard Times took place outside the Corn Exchange.

Fox Street The former St Wilfrid's School, the first building to be lit by gas in Preston.

Chapel Street St Wilfrid's Church was built in 1793 by the Jesuits – its discreet location reflects the still uncertain position of Catholics in society.

Winckley Square The home of Preston's professional classes from the late Georgian period – and now their offices – surrounding a tranquil garden park.

Ribblesdale Place Late Georgian and Victorian houses leading to the Harris Institute and Avenham Colonnade.

Avenham Road An 1840s and 1930s gold-thread works hidden in a terraced street.

Guildhall Street The Tudor-style former Conservative Club was built in 1878 for wealthier supporters and is now a bar.

Turn right on to Fishergate to return to the Market Square.
